Movement Breaks Out to Establish Seven Man TUHS Board

By CARL E. VENSTROM
Editor and Publisher

There is presently a movement among citizens in both Tustin and El Toro for structuring a seven man board of education for the Tustin Union High School District, according to area representation.

In an exclusive interview this week with C. A. "Neil" Papp, of 13302 Malena Dr., Tustin, the RANCHO REPORTER learned he and El Toro residents have met and are presently preparing recommendations for the high school district governing board on the seven man board concept.

Papp said tentative plans include two members to be elected from the Foothill high area, two members from the Tustin high area, two members from the Mission Viejo high area and one board member from Leisure World.

"It is extremely important," explained Papp, "that we have the residents of Leisure World take part in the governing of the high school district."

Papp also said "this is a determined effort to bring democratic government to the Tustin Union High School District."

Chuck Walman, 24241 Larkwood Lane, El Toro, said he "is for the seven man board since it will prevent cliques from forming and will get the local people in our El Toro area involved in the high school district."

Waltman also approves the area representation concept since he believes this method of election will cut down on the cost of a candidate running for the school board. Waltman is the newly elected president of the Aliso Valley Homeowners Assn.

Warren Wilson, presently a member of the TUHS District Governing Board living in El Toro, said "many districts are presently structured according to area representation and are successful enough." He felt that he presently does not have enough information on seven men boards to know whether they are advisable or not.

"Area representation is fine, but should not include Leisure World," said John Zisch, Tustin resdient who was elected to the high school board last week. Zisch will take office on July 1 of this year.

Zisch said the board could be larger although it might prove to be harder to function. "Area representation is a good thing but one must choose wisely the areas," said Zisch.

New Plan Offered For El Toro Road

By TERRY ALLAN
Rancho Reporter City Editor

Board members of the Aliso Valley Homeowners Assn. met Thursday night with a representative of Rose Glen Construction Co. concerning the El Toro Road duplex controversy.

Late last month it was learned that developer Richard Cavanaugh intended to construct duplexes on the El Toro Road, and the tenants of adjoining homes objected.

After a postponed hearing with the County Planning Commission, Cavanaugh's concern presented the board with an alternate plan that would allow for single resident dwelling in front of the homes, but still calls for 29 duplexes to be built behind a large wall.

Cavanaugh will send representatives to a special open meeting of the association Mon., May 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's Club, according to President Chuck Waltman.

In other board action, a letter was forwarded to the office of the Administrative Coordinator of Orange County, requesting that the street sweeping system be commenced at the earliest possible date for the areas of Pasaverde Homes, Laguna North 5 and 6, Sunny Ray Homes, and the Republic Homes, Waltman said.

UCI Introduction Is Now Available

"Introduction to UCI," a 16-page illustrated booklet about the University of California, Irvine, is off the press this week. The booklet contains information of interest to prospective students and to the general public.

Copies are available without charge by writing or telephoning the UCI Public Affairs Office; Irvine California; 714/833-6922.

This office also handles requests to be placed on the mailing list for the monthly calendar and the chancellor's quarterly newsletter.

Citizens Committee To Meet at Foothill

The Citizens Educational Advisory Committee to the Tustin Union High School District will have a general meeting on Tues., May 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the cafeteria at Foothill High School, located at Newport Avenue and Dodge Street in Tustin.

A resolution will be presented at the meeting supporting the 45¢ tax override for the high school district. A subcommittee will be working on promoting the tax override which is scheduled for June 13. The public is invited to attend and take part in the meeting.

Toro Residents Beautify Tract

Residents of Pasverde, El Toro, struck out on their own this month to beautify the neighborhood.

Through the organizational efforts of Mrs. Richard Steed and Mrs. Keith Justice, residents purchased and planted 105 crepe myrtle trees along the local streets.

Husbands took time off from their Saturday golf games to plant the trees, and wives spend their every wake hour worrying about watering them.

All in all, the group can hardly wait until next season to just sit back and watch them bloom.

EDITORIALS:

Congratulations to Winners

Congratulations are in order for the men who won positions last week on the San Joaquin Elementary Board and the Tustin Union High School Board.

Thanks should go to the other candidates who did not win. It is most encouraging to find that there were so many interested citizens that cared enough about their schools to want to serve in the capacity of board member.

There was no teaming up of candidates and all of the candidates worked hard to get elected. This made the election competitive, interesting and worthwhile to win.

This newspaper hopes that the next time around the local citizens will see fit to elect a candidate to the high school board from our area. We feel it is imperative that in a rapidly growing area such as ours to have representation on the high school board.

Since the election this newspaper has interviewed both men who won the high school board elections and both of them pledge support for our area. Both men will take office on July 1 of this year.

John G. Zisch said this week "I will continue to visit the people in the circulation area of the RANCHO REPORTER and will use this newspaper to communicate with them on school problems. I am also available by telephone."

R. C. "Bob" Bartholomew, the other high school board member winner, said that he knows our area well and will work closely with the people and the San Joaquin Elementary School District on providing an adequate high school for the children of the area.

The two winners of the San Joaquin Elementary School Board are easy men to talk to and are well acquainted with the problems of the district. Gratian D. Bidart is a long time rancher in the area and John David Smith is a captain in the U,S. Navy.

Now that we have elected these men let's give them our support and communicate with them on the needs of our two school systems. The "Letters to the Editor" column of this newspaper is always open to our readers.

Plan and Act...

Now's the time to plan and act for the future of your high school district.

Plan to attend and take part in the public meeting of the Citizens Educational Advisory Committee for the Tustin Union High School District which will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Foothill High School cafeteria in Tustin. The high school is located at Newport Avenue and Dodge Street.

A resolution will be presented at the meeting supporting the 45¢ tax override for the high school district. The Committee would like your presence and your support if the June 13th tax override is to pass.

Two tax overrides for the high school district have failed during this past school year. Let's take some time out and plan and then act on what kind of a high school district we really want.

Bartholomew, Zisch Win Board Seats

School board elections, like the races, aren't won until the finish line.

The San Joaquin Elementary election and the Tustin Union High School elections weren't determined until the last one-half hour of poll counting.

Unofficial winners of the San Joaquin Elementary School election were Gratian D. Bidart and John David Smith. Bidart, incumbent, won with 633 votes and Smith, incumbent, won with 614.

Final tally for others running in the San Joaquin race were Marvin D. Mayer, 255; Randall H. Kratz Jr., 221.

Unofficial winners for the Tustin Union High School board were Robert C. Bartholomew, 1,445 and John G. Zisch, 1,345.

Final count for other Tustin Union High School District candidates were: Richard T. Brown, 1,333; Warren W. Wilson (inc.), 1,318; Dickran Boranian, 1,070; Howard L. Selleck, 806; Dr. John Richard Broe, 467; Shelby D. Minton, 292 and Adam W. Hubber, 160.

REFLECTIONS...

MORE ON FRIENDSHIP

My earlier essay on "Americans and Friendship" has caused much concern among my friends. My remark, "A friend who can share my happiness is a friend indeed" has been misunderstood. Consequently it needs some amplification.

I believe that the daily life of most Americans is becoming a very complicated enterprise. Most of his needs require the services of a professional such as a doctor, lawyer, psychiatrist, stock-broker etc. A friend can at best make things more difficult in most cases.

In olden times, friends were of a different breed. They could burn midnite oil while you were laden with fever and sickness. Friends could defend you against the attacks of an enemy tribe. They could comfort you or your relatives when you were mentally deranged.

Nowadays, all one can do is to listen patiently to a needy friend and hope that he will employ a professional help to tide over his difficulty. Any deeper involvement at that time may cause bitterness or the loss of friendship later on.

To illustrate, an involvement centered around money is still one of the worst kind. Money has ruined many a beautiful friendship. One should never forget what Shakespeare wrote, "Neither a borrower nor a lender be; For loan often loses both itself and friend." Even my illiterate mother from India reflected much wisdom in one of her many aphorism, "Without a teacher, no salvation; Without a professional lender, much privation."

While I despise the modern friendship based primarily on help and pity, I also cannot stand the fair-weather friends who just want to share your wealth, food, power or anything else they can lay their dirty hands on.

I am only interested in a creative friendship which can only occur during moments of mirth, laughter, enjoyment and deep spiritual involvement. Such a creative friendship is now in the reach of more and more Americans if they could only realize its subtle nature.

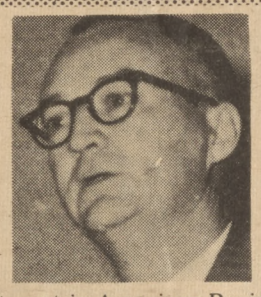
BLUE CHIPS...

COMMON STOCKS



The person who is embarking upon an investment program in stocks should avoid the most common error. That error is expecting too much too soon.

Many people who buy stocks for the first time would have to admit that they want to get rich quickly. But, they want a "nice little stock" that will 1) give them complete safety, 2) pay a big dividend and 3) increase rapidly in value. That would be great but it is expecting far too much.

It might be possible to get relatively low risk and a moderate dividend. Relatively low risk and a good prospect for growth is also a possibility. The combination of a good dividend and chances of growth might be available - usually with a greater risk.

Some people are always looking for a chance to "make a killing." Despite good advice, they act impulsively, ignoring their real objectives. Because of this headlong approach, they often select the wrong stocks and for the wrong reasons. In doing so, they may take foolhardy risks and overextend themselves financially.

Some people seem determined to make everything a gamble. The same ones do not learn from their mistakes.

Stock ownership is an investment in American Business. As with the ownership of any business, growth takes time. Stocks can increase in value only as the companies they represent are able to grow and prosper. Let me repeat--stock ownership is an investment in the business of the greatest country the world has ever known. The sensible investor consults with a broker and picks a stock that seems to match his objective. He then lets time and the American economy work for him.

HALLUCINATING . . .

A LITTLE BIT ON SEX

The problem of pre-marital sex among young people today is often considered a serious one.

I thought it might be valuable for adults to understand a little more about what the new generation thinks about sex before marriage.

Contrary to what many parents think, youth today does not believe sex began when we reached puberty. We all realize sexual experience--whether in marriage or pre-marital, through incest, obsession, or the intent to bear children--has been an objective of the human race for thousands of years.

Because some members of today's youth "have no shame" does not mean we are all nudists or free sex advocates.

There are undoubtedly just as many young men and women who look down on free sex as there are those who advocate it. As in most situations, the advocates speak loudest.

Through discussion with friends representing all religions, including atheism, I've found a definite split in the new generation's views on pre-marital sex.

There are definitely as many opponents as preponents of free, liberal sexual relationships among young men and women.

For the most part, those opposing free sexual expressions among unmarried couples reflect the moral ethics taught them by their parents and their churches.

Those "advocating" a man and woman experiencing each other's beauty outside marriage simply "see nothing wrong," ugly or immoral about it--including "the act" or "just messing around."

In short, we are confused about sex. While there seems to be nothing basically wrong about man and woman experiencing each other's beauty, the bible and society constantly tell us it's not right.

If that's not enough, parents suppress us with the horror that pre-marital pregnancy may mean "the end of the world."

But while all this is hanging over us, men recognize the beauty of the female form, and vice versa, and we know illegitimate children have been walking the earth since time began.

'Take Him Out to Ball Game'

By Jim Watkins
Sports Writer

When I was a kid back in the forties, my first real hero was Billy Schuster of the old LA Angels. This was only a minor league area then, but you could never tell my pals and me that.

My father was a Hollywood star fan, and being about as contrary as today's youth, I naturally adopted the Angels.

Well, I remember the many times we made the jaunt from our home in Long Beach to Wrigley or Gilmore Field to root for our favorites. Even though we cheered for opposite teams, a certain warm companionship between my Dad and myself resulted from these excursions. For here was one area in which we could share an interest and through which we could communicate with each other.

Twenty years have gone by and this area now has a few million more people and two major league ball clubs. The "LA" Angels have moved out to the old citrus groves of Anaheim. One thing has not changed -- my love for baseball. Other sports may be more exciting or demand more skill, yet somehow baseball survives as ruler of my heart.

Perhaps it is a sense of gratitude that leads me to favor baseball. Baseball not only gave me the thrills and joys common to all participants and fans, it also provided me an opportunity to get closer to and learn from my father.

The 1967 baseball season has now been launched. The home of the California Angels is only minutes away. May I suggest that you fathers treat your son to a ball game soon.

You will probably enjoy it, as well as profit from it.

'Planing Family Estate' at UCI

How to avoid probate court has been a subject of much interest lately.

It will be but one of several topics to be covered in "Planning the Family Estate," a public conference to be held at UCI Saturday by University Extension.

Planning the Family Estate will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 1140, Natural Sciences Building, and the fee of $10 per person includes luncheon.

Among the topics to be explored will be determining the objectives desired in planning a family estate, the functions of a will, community property, the use of life insurance and annuities.

The group also named themselves at last week's meeting. "To incorporate the entire area," they chose "Saddleback Singers."
